What Is Affiliate Marketing?

Affiliate marketing is a performance-driven marketing strategy where a business rewards affiliates—individuals or companies—for driving traffic or sales to their products or services. - Consumers discover products and services through trusted sources.

This is the company or individual that creates and sells the product or service. They develop the affiliate program, set commission rates, and provide promotional materials.

2. The Affiliate (Publisher)

The person or entity promoting the merchant's products. Affiliates create content, share links, and drive traffic to the merchant's website.

3. The Consumer

The target audience who encounters the affiliate's promotion and makes a purchase or completes a desired action.

Some programs operate through affiliate networks that act as intermediaries, managing tracking, payments, and compliance.

Workflow Overview:

- The affiliate signs up for an affiliate program.

- The affiliate promotes the product using these links.
- A consumer clicks on the link and visits the merchant's site.

- The merchant pays the affiliate a predetermined commission.

This seamless tracking system—often facilitated through cookies—ensures affiliates are credited appropriately for their efforts.

Types of Affiliate Marketing Models

Affiliate marketing offers various models tailored to different promotional strategies and business goals:

Affiliates earn a small fee each time a user clicks on their affiliate link, regardless of purchase intent. This model is less common due to higher fraud risks.

4. Cost-Per-Acquisition (CPA)

Similar to PPS, affiliates earn when a specific action?like completing a purchase?is completed.
